

First Step to Better Hiring Decisions

WorkPort is First Advantage's proprietary employment screening database that makes an instant employment verification available to employers. Available on the web (or by fax), WorkPort is an excellent preliminary screen, allowing you to quickly gather data and determine the need for a more extensive background check.

WorkPort offers you a fast, inexpensive way to verify information provided by a potential employee on their job application. WorkPort may reveal: past employers, positions held, dates of employment, eligibility for rehire, past personnel problems, plus past criminal records. If an applicant misrepresents or omits prior employment data on their application, you may discover that information by searching WorkPort. Armed with more complete information, you can then question the applicant and make an informed hiring decision, or decide to proceed with additional background checks from First Advantage.

Thanks to the data contributions of WorkPort clients in key regions and industries, the WorkPort database continuously grows with employment termination data being added monthly, plus other public record data that we collect. As a WorkPort client, you, too, can contribute to the database and receive even more favorable pricing.
